

My Portrait

I started college at University of Bucharest almost two years ago, when I was 18. Even though there are lots of blonde stereotypes I defy them and painted my golden locks to fit my light blue eyes and pale skin. My colleagues call me too tall and say that I should play basketball, still, I'm not doing any sport but I try to stay healthy.

Even though I'm smart, I can be lazy at times. I need to stay focused and organize everything. When I have something planned I try my best to accomplish it, always paying attention to the smallest details. I'm like a bullet coming out of a gun at my goal, nothing stops me. I am very sociable and I try to help others in need through volunteering or simply help my friends even if it's about school stuff. I am a hardworking student, but I know when it's time to relax.

In my free time, I like to play video games and watch TV series. I love singing and I recently started playing the guitar, but most of all I love to travel, especially to the mountain and countryside to my hometown. Even though my major is in Computer Science I feel free to be outside whenever I can.

My future is uncertain by now. Maybe I will go on the path of electronics as I find Robotics to be the most catching and competitive class this year. I haven't decided what I want to do, but one thing is sure: I want to love my job, happiness matters more to me. I will keep in balance family and career because none of them is above other.
